

OUR MISSION

(Inscribed to all the comrades.)
My comrades, there's a mission for you;
A mission of love and peace,
To which you should always be true;
The "mission" for man's release,
From fetters which hold him in thrall,
By poverty, hunger and rage,
In the "land" where there's plenty
for all;
There's freedom and weary he lags.

From the burdens unequally borne,
Faded up by avarice of men,
Till of all his strength he is shorn,
By the ceaseless clatter and din;
Where the "Mills of Mammon" grind
In their endless rounds of toil,
While to his cries they are blind,
Not heeding his life of turmoil.

So let's go on "Our Mission" today,
And spread the glad news o'er the earth;
Though cheerless and dark seems the way,
Yet "Freedom" shall have a new birth.

And break the fetter of thrall,
Which bind him in darkest night;
For the "Day-Star" will rise over all,
And shed forth His glorious light.

See! the beautiful dawn has arisen,
No longer will we walk in night;
See! "Old Earth" is breaking from prison,
By the rays of "His" lustrous light;

That "Light," which shown in times of old,
Flooding the mountains and plain
With its gleams of mellowed gold,
Is shining on "Old Earth" once again.

W. E. STEPHENS.

ATTACKED BY WOLVES

There were five of us. We were Russian explorers who were returning from Siberia, where we had been sent by the Czar to explore the Amoor river.

It was in the year 1836, in the dead of winter. We did not feel the cold very keenly, as we had on two fur coats apiece.

We did not fear anything but a large pack of wolves, as we had four guns. We were five miles from Moscow, and thinking that all danger was past, fired our cartridges at trees.

Suddenly, we heard a blood-curdling yelp, and a pack of wolves, perhaps twenty in number, sprang out of some bushes that were growing by the roadside.

We had but one cartridge left, and so Sigurd Thorwaldsen, a Norseman by birth, took aim and killed a large one.

The greedy wolves pounced upon the fallen animal, and by making the horses gallop, we managed to gain a few rods, but soon they were up with us again. We trembled to think of our sad fate if the wolves should get on the sledge.

Just as the wolves were ready to spring on the sledge, Sigurd Thorwaldsen said, "Good-bye, brethren, and good luck," and jumped into the midst of the pack of wolves and fought them savagely. At last he was killed, after killing three of them. Our eyes were wet with tears, but we were far enough ahead to get to Moscow in safety.

We reached the river in safety and started across. The ice was thin on the further side and we went crash, through the ice. The wolves came on, and now they were racing across the ice.

Just as we reached the shore a lot of broken ice came down and we saw the wolves battling with the ice.

The ice was the stronger, however, and they were soon floating down stream, dead.

When we reached the palace we told the story to the Czar.

Never can I forget that night when we were attacked by wolves.

MAY SHIP IN BEER

Supreme Court Decides That Railroads Must Carry It

The Supreme Court of the United States ruled Monday that beer is a commodity and that railroads must carry it when offered for transportation from one State into the "dry" counties of another State, regardless of the laws of the latter State. The ruling is made regarding the proposed shipment from Indiana into the dry counties of Kentucky.

Works Hard for Success

Always a forcible and picturesque orator and a legislator who has never yet compromised on principle, Mr. Clark is recognized as one of the hardest workers for the success of his party in Congress in recent years. Even in attaining the highest office in the gift of his colleagues, that characteristic of Champ Clark which has stood out foremost, has been his readiness to make a personal sacrifice for the good of his party. Thus it was that he led the fight against Cannonism in the House, knowing full well that if his party was successful at the polls he would be the first Speaker to serve a full term short of the power and glory which formerly distinguished that office. —New York Evening Post.

NO VACANT HOUSES

At the present time there is not one vacant dwelling in Miami and there are many people living in the hotels and rooming houses because they are unable to rent cottages. Cottages are being completed almost every day, but they are always rented before they are completed, even before they are started.

"I Suffered Intense Pains in My Left Side."

Do you realize it is better to be safe than sorry, that it is the best policy to lock the stable door before the horse is stolen?

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy cured Mrs. C. C. Gokey, of a stubborn case of heart disease, such as thousands are now suffering with. Read what she says:

"Before I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I had been suffering from heart trouble for over five years. I had grown so weak that it was impossible for me to do thirty minutes of work in a whole day. I suffered intense pains in my left side and under the left shoulder blade. I could not sleep on the left side, and was so short of breath that I thought I should never be able to take a full breath again. The least excitement would bring on the most distressing palpitation. I had scarcely taken a half-bottle of the Heart Remedy before I could see a marked change in my condition. I began to sleep well, had a good appetite, and improved so rapidly that when I had taken six bottles I was completely cured."

MRS. C. C. GOKEY, Northfield, Vt.

If you have any of the symptoms Mrs. Gokey mentions, it is your duty to protect yourself.

TO THE MARAPOSA LILLIES

Oh, Maraposa Lillies,
That grow upon the hills,
More beautiful than Columbines,
That grow by brooks and rills.

You're beautiful all day,
You're beautiful all night,
You're beautiful in May,
When stars are very bright.

And when we go a-Maying,
We pick the queens of flowers,
You, Maraposa Lillies,
We take you to our bowers.

Against Time

An old negro was brought to trial in a Southern town for stealing a chicken. "Rastus," said the judge before pronouncing sentence, "I am about to give you two months in the workhouse. Have you anything to say for yourself?" "Good Gawd, boss!" exclaimed the old man. "Two months! For stealing one hen! 'Have you anything to say?' repeated the judge, sternly. "All I got to say is, boss," declared the negro, "I ain' no use to sen' me to no jail for two months for stealin' one chicken, 'case ef I spent two months in jail for ev'ry chicken I done stole, I might as well done been bawn in jail."

See That Hump

A lady who was about to start on a trip to the Southern part of the world was advised to be sure to look for the equator. On board the vessel she approached the captain and told him she would be greatly obliged if he would point out the equator to her. After a while he told her they were drawing near, and gave her the use of his telescope. Pulling a half out he held it in front of the telescope and said to the lady, "There is the equator, can you see it?"

"Oh, yes, yes," she said excitedly, "and there's a camel on it!" —Harper's Weekly.

First Blood for Clark

Now that the Clark men have won a victory in having a convention called in Missouri for February 20th, it is generally recognized that he will defeat Gov. Folk easily in the contest for Missouri's delegates and will enter the Presidential race with the first instructed delegation in the Union.
